PROCLAIMS FREE TRADE

PORTO RICAN ASSEMBLY DECLARES THE ISLANDS SELF-SUPPORTING.

ALLEN SIGNS RESOLUTION

President Requested to Issue the Proclamation July 25—Considered the Most Important Act Ever Passed by the Assembly—Civil Government Formally Inaugurated in the Philippine Islands.

Sau Juan, Porto Rico, July 5.—In a joint session lasting three hours the Porto Rican assembly unanimously passed the free trade resolution. The assembly hall was crowded with spectators and cheers greeted the announcement that Governor Allen had signed the resolution.

The free trade resolution began with a preamble in which reference is made to section 3 of the Foraker law. The resolution then continues:

"The Porto Rican assembly, in extra session and acting pursuant to the instructions of congress, does hereby notify the president of the United States that by virtue of the Hollander act and other acts it has enacted and put into operation a system of local taxation to meet the necessities of insular government, and it hereby directs that a copy of this joint resolution be presented to the president of the United States, and it requests that Governor Allen deliver the resolution in question to President McKinley to the end that the proclamation may be made by him, and if it shall seem wise and proper to the president of the United States the assembly requests that his proclamation be issued July 25, as that day is being established a legal Porto Rican holiday to commemorate the anniversary of the

Coming of the American Flag."

Governor Allen personally read a message before the assembly in which he exhaustively reviewed the financial situation of the island and showed that Porto Rico possessed abundant resources for its needs without drawing upon customs receipts.

Mr. Hollander's report upon the island's resources from which revenue could be derived was considered sufficiently definite to warrant the joint resolution in favor of free trade. The resolution was introduced to the house by Senor Morales. Mr. Hollander, in a long speech, reviewed the workings of the new tax law. He said:

"Present conditions make this joint resolution possible and the insular assembly can henceforth dispense with the revenues accruing from Porto Rican customs."

The resolution passed at 12:45 and was signed by Governor Allen.

The action of the assembly is considered to be the most important taken by it since the inauguration of Governor Allen.

TAFT SWORN IN.

Civil Government Formally Inaugurated in the Philippine Islands.

Manila, July 5.—Civil government in the Philippines has been auspiciously inaugurated. Commissioner Taft was escorted by General MacArthur and General Chaffee from the palace to a great temporary tribune just outside the Plaza Palacio. Standing on a projecting center of the tribune, Mr. William H. Taft, the new civil governor of the Philippines, took the oath of office administered by Chief Justice Arellano. Governor Taft was then introduced by General MacArthur, the guns of Fort Santiago being fired by way of a salute.

A feature of the inaugural address of Governor Taft was the announcement that on Sept. 1, 1901, the commission would be increased by the appointment of three native members, Dr. Wardo Detavera, Denito Legarda and Jose Luzuriaga. Before Sept. 1 departments will exist as follows, heads having been arranged for thus: Interior, Worcester; commerce and police, Wright; justice and finance, Ide; public instruction, Moses.

Of the 27 provinces organized Civil Governor Taft said the insurrection still exists in five. This will cause the continuance of the military government in these sections. Sixteen additional provinces are reported without insurrections, but as yet they have not been organized. Four provinces are not ready for civil government.

For Preservation of Order.

The speaker predicted that with the concentration of troops into larger garrisons it would be necessary for the people to assist the police in the preservation of order. Fleet launches will be procured, he said, which will facilitate communication among the provinces, as well as aid the postal and revenue departments. In connection with educational efforts Civil Governor Taft said that adults should be educated by an observation of American methods. He said that there was a reasonable hope that congress would provide a tariff suitable, one that would assist in the development of the Philippines, instead of an application of the United States tariff.

According to the civil governor, there is an unexpended balance in the insular treasury of $3,700,000 and an annual income of $10,000,000.

He said that any possible friction between civil and military subordinates should be discouraged. The patriotism of the leading Filipinos was commended. In conclusion, Civil Governor Taft reiterated a hope expressed by the president that in the future the inhabitants would be grateful for the American Philippines victories, and that they would be indissolubly linked in ties of affection with the common country.

Cheered McKinley's Message.

The reading of President McKinley's message of congratulation was enthusiastically cheered. The entire front of the tribune, a block long, was decorated with flags, and several hundred officers, with their families and friends, were seated therein. General MacArthur, Civil Governor Taft and Military Governor Chaffee occupied the center, with the other generals on their right. Rear Admiral Kempff and his staff were on their left. The United States commissioners and justices of the supreme court were in the immediate rear with the consuls. The mass of the people stood in the park opposite. The Filipino leaders were there, but there were more Americans than Filipinos present.

The transfer of the military authority to General Chaffee was carried out in the presence of the generals in General MacArthur's office. There was no formality. General MacArthur presented the new commander to the generals and remarked:

"I begueth to you all my troubles." All the high civil and army officers accompanied MacArthur to the river front, where he formally embarked. Governor Taft and General Chaffee then returned to the palace and received the public.

ASPHALT CONFLICT.

Probability of a Clash of Armed Forces in Venezuela.

Sau Juan, Porto Rico, July 5.—According to passengers who have arrived here on a steamship from Venezuela, the Warner-Quinlan syndicate has taken possession of the Felicidad asphalt mines under the authority of a decree by state courts.

An armed force, said the passengers, was necessary to enforce the decree. The New York & Bermudez company subsequently had a strong guard re-enter the property.

Mr. Quinlan will petition the government, on behalf of his syndicate, to have troops maintain possession of the mines for his syndicate. This request, it is thought, will be granted. It is probable that a conflict will take place.

The federal court of Venezuela is still considering the appeal regarding the title to the asphalt mines.

A ministerial crisis has been averted in Venezuela, and President Castro will soon make a tour of the republic.

HEARD WU TING FANG.

Chinese Minister Fourth of July Orator at Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, July 5.—Several thousand persons gathered in Independence square to see and hear Wu Ting Fang, the Chinese minister, orator of the day at the municipal celebration of Independence day. The friendly reception given the distinguished guest must have allayed all fears for his safety, based on the fact that he received an anonymous letter threatening him with bodily harm.

When the Chinese diplomat stepped to the front of the platform he was given a rousing reception and it was some time before quiet could be restored. His speech was heard with marked attention and every patriotic utterance was loudly cheered.

STARTS FOR DETROIT.

Train Bearing Governor Pingree's Body Leaves New York.

New York, July 5.—The body of Hazen S. Pingree, former governor of Michigan, who died while abroad, was started for Detroit during the afternoon from the Grand Central station. The funeral train consisted of three cars. The car in which the coffin rested was draped in black cloth and displayed on either side a large oil painting of the dead man.

There were no services at the time of the removal to the train. William C. Maybury, mayor of Detroit, with a delegation of about 25 persons from that city, including some of the former staff of Mr. Pingree when he was governor, attended the body.

Prince Pleads Not Guilty.

Kansas City, July 5.—Will Prince, indicted for murder in the first degree as an accessory to the killing of Philip H. Kennedy by his sister, pleaded not guilty. His trial was set for the September term. Lulu Prince Kennedy, under a 10 years' sentence for the murder, will ask to remain in the county jail until after her brother's trial so that she may testify in his behalf.

Missionaries Are Returning to Shan Tung, Where They Are Well Received by the Natives—Express the Opinion That the Calm Will Not Continue—Indemnities for Mission Property Adjusted.

Berlin, July 5.—A special dispatch to The Volkszeitung from China says that according to advices received at mission headquarters many missionaries have returned to the interior of Shan Tung province, where they were well received by the Chinese. The indemnities for mission property destroyed and missionaries and native Christians killed have nearly all been adjusted, but missionaries express the opinion that the calm will not continue. A missionary from Shen Si province reports that following the directions of the dowager empress great preparations are being made for an uprising in that country.

ORDINARY THIEVES.

Robbers Arrested in China Were Not American Soldiers.

Peking, July 5.—Investigation proves that the five men who were arrested for robberies committed in Sansho City are not American soldiers as alleged, but ordinary thieves. Orders have been issued to send them to Tien Tsin for trial by the consular court there. There are a large number of such Americans in North China, whose acts greatly injure the national reputation.

The Fourth at Peking.

Peking, July 5.—The Fourth was celebrated here by the United States legation guard with athletic games and fireworks. The German minister, Dr. Mumm von Schwarzenstein, gave a dinner at the German legation to the officers of the American guard. Messrs. Squires and Rockhill and other members of the United States legation celebrated the Fourth at the summer legation in the hills.

LISTENED TO MR. BRYAN.

Delivers the Independence Day Oration at Montague, Tenn.

Montague, Tenn., July 5.—William Jennings Bryan delivered the Independence day oration here. In the course of his address he said it would be a slander on those who wrote the Declaration of Independence to say that it was promulgated as a temporary expedient. He declared the Constitution and Declaration to be inseparable. Mr. Bryan said the nation until it forsakes the doctrine of the consent of the governed. The abandonment of the Declaration, he averred, would cause us to lose the respect of all nations and the adoption of a brute force policy would ultimately lead to the downfall of the republic. Imperialism, he said, is the logical outcome of the commercial spirit, and the country is engaged in a war of conquest for no other reason than that those in charge of the government think the exploitation of the Philippines will prove profitable. The tendency of the times, he said, is toward the creation of an aristocracy of wealth and the relinquishment of those virtues that are essential to the well being of a free and respectable people.

ACTION IS SIGNIFICANT.

Keystone Rolling Company Signs the Amalgamated Scale.

Pittsburg, July 5.—The officials of the Keystone Rolling company of this city have signed the Amalgamated Association wage agreement. The close relations existing between the Keystone company and National Tube company, one of the largest constituent companies of the United States Steel corporation, makes the signing of the scale a significant action in view of the complications existing between the Amalgamated Association and the American Sheet Steel company, another part of the big steel combine.

KILLED BY THE HEAT.

Bernard Morris of New York Dies in His 110th Year.

New York, July 5.—Bernard Morris, who died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Sarah Cohen, in Brooklyn, on Tuesday night, from the effect of heat, was in his 110th year, and until Thursday of last week was hale and hearty as any man of three score and ten. He went about his work in Prospect Park, until a week ago.

Mr. Morris was born in Central Port, County Cavan, Ireland. He came to the United States in 1822.

THE SECOND VICTORY.

Pennsylvanians Defeat Thames Rowing Club in Challenges Cup Race.

Henley-on-the-Thames, July 5.—The second day of the Henley regatta was signalized by another victory for the Americans, the oarsmen from the University of Pennsylvania defeating the Thames Rowing club and thus securing their second heat. The Leanders defeated the Belgian crew and the Pennsylvanians must now meet the Leanders in the final heat for the Grand Challenge Cup.

The results of the heats were as follows:

Grand Challenge Cup, third heat—Leander Rowing club beat the Belgian crew by three-quarters of a length. Time, 7:08.

Grand Challenge Cup, fourth heat—Pennsylvania University beat the Thames Rowing club by three lengths. Time, 7:22.

Soon after 11 o'clock the Leanders, paddling to the start for their race with the Belgians, were loudly applauded along their course, but their reception was quite eclipsed by that given to the Americans as, a few minutes later, they followed. The contrast in the style of the two crews, whom everybody expected to see fighting it out in the final heat, was more marked than ever.

There was only five minutes difference between the two races and no sooner had Umpire Williams sent the Leanders and Belgians off than Umpire Putman's launch took its place to start the Americans and the Thames crew. There was a capital start and the Pennsylvanians had three-fourths of a length lead before the top of the island was reached. They did half the distance in 3:30. Their opponents did the half in 3:42. Opposite the Leander enclosure the Pennsylvanians were three lengths ahead and although they again eased considerably and the others spurred, the Thames men were never able to make up anything.

Passing the grand stand the Americans could not resist a little spurt and they rowed past with a dozen strokes at the rate of 41 to the minute. The Americans had a very friendly reception and a number of their countrymen succeeded in giving them a very respectable college yell.

MINISTERS PROTEST.

Denver Divines Condemn Judge Palmer's Action.

Denver, July 5.—A committee of seven prominent clergymen, representing the various denominations, appointed at a meeting of ministers to draw up a statement expressing their views concerning Judge Palmer's action in the saloon contempt case, has mailed Governor Orman and Judge Palmer a letter which, after reviewing all the facts in the case and expressing a desire, "not by any criticism to impede the course of justice, but rather to support and uphold the judiciary," concludes as follows: "We desire to utter a profound and solemn protest against the act of Judge Palmer in tying up the police administration of the city by injunction."

MOUNTS FOR THE BRITONS.

Thousands of Animals Being Shipped From New Orleans.

New Orleans, July 5.—The South Africa horse and mule trade has shown great revival in the past few days. Four British transports have reached here this week to load animals for Cape Town, and four more are dated to arrive during the week. One thousand mules left on the Jamaican Wednesday, 500 mules and horses Thursday, and 1,500 mules and 1,000 horses will go later in the week. The British officers think the present activity will continue until Christmas. The British government has 8,000 head of mules and 7,000 horses at Kansas City, which will be shipped to New Orleans as fast as the vessels here can load them.

BALTIMORE BLAZE.

Fire Causes Damage Estimated at $450,000.

Baltimore, July 5.—The 6-story brick and iron building on North and Lexington streets, directly opposite the city hall, was destroyed by fire during the day. It took fully an hour to get the flames under control. All of the floors except the first were occupied by Hoen & Co., lithographers and printers. Their loss may reach $300,000 as they had many valuable cuts and lithographic apparatus which it is almost impossible to replace.

Other occupants of the building, all of whom are on the first floor, lost about $150,000.

GENERAL WOOD BETTER.

Will Come to the United States as Soon as Possible.

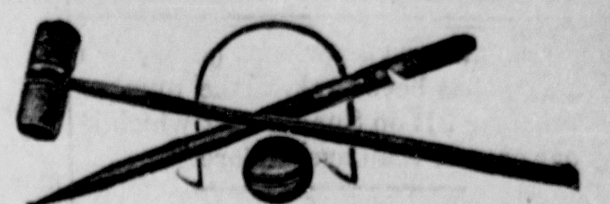

Havana, July 5.—Governor General Wood was reported better, but his physicians advise him to take a trip to the United States as soon as possible. His condition will probably allow of this in about two weeks. Acting Governor Scott has ordered Senor Barcardi, mayor of Santiago, in reorganizing the police, to make selections from among members of the former force. The mayor discharged all the police on assuming office and has been appointing new ones.

THE CURRY OUTLAWS

GREAT NORTHERN TRAIN ROBBERS IDENTIFIED AS THE TEXAS BANDITS.

FOSSE IN CLOSE PURSUIT

Sheriff Griffith With Forty-five Men Is Only Eight Miles Behind Them.

Are Heading for the Bad Lands and It Will Be Difficult to Capture Them Should They Succeed in Reaching There.

Havre, Mon., July 5.—The train robbers who held up the Great Northern flyer at East Wagner have been recognized as the famous Curry outlaws. "Kid" Curry is the leader another is named Longhole and the third man's name is unknown. All speak the Texas dialect. A cow puncher riding north from the Missouri river met the three bandits about 70 miles south of Malta. They asked the cow puncher to notify the men following them that they were going south. The cow puncher had only gone about four miles when he met Sheriff Griffith with a posse of 45 men, comprising the best gun men in Eastern Montana. They were only about eight miles behind the robbers, but the robbers have the advantage, having relay horses, changing about 50 miles south of the scene of the robbery. About 30 miles further south will take the bandits into the Bad Lands. Sheriff Griffith with his men is making every effort to catch them before they reach the Bad Lands, as it will be difficult to catch them should they succeed in reaching them. The posse is growing larger constantly and horses are being changed frequently. The cow puncher said the third man in the party had a bandage around his head. This was probably caused by one of two shots fired by Sheriff Griffith, who was on the train.

MADE A BIG HAUL.

Detailed Account of the Great Northern Express Robbery.

Great Falls, Mon., July 5.—The Great Northern Transcontinental Train No. 3 was held up at Wagner, Mon., 196 miles east of Great Falls, at 3 p. m. by three masked men, who blew open the express car and wrecked the through safe with dynamite, securing $83,000. The robbery, in daylight, was one of the boldest that ever occurred in the West.

One of the robbers boarded the "blind baggage" car at Hinsdale, a station about 20 miles east of Wagner. He appeared to be a common hobo, but when the conductor discovered him at a stop almost immediately afterward, he drew a heavy Colt's revolver and ordered him to return to the rear of the train on penalty of instant death. The hobo then climbed over the locomotive tender and at the point of his revolver compelled the engineer and fireman to stop the train at a ravine a few miles east of Wagner, where his confederates, two in number, both masked, lay in wait. The hobo then compelled the engineer and fireman to abandon the engine. Firing began on both sides of the train as it came to a stop.

Three Passengers Injured.

Passengers on the train began to look out of the windows and a brakeman alighted on one side of the train,

while Traveling Auditor Douglas alighted on the opposite side. They instantly became the targets of Winchester in the hands of the robbers, but both escaped without injury. A passenger in the tourist coach, who was leaning out of the window, was struck by a bullet and seriously injured. Other passengers were shot, but no one was seriously injured.

To wreck the door of the express car with dynamite, with which both the confederates that appeared from the ravine were liberally supplied, was the work of an instant. The express messenger was compelled to leave the car at the point of a rifle and the through safe was immediately dynamited. The first charge did not break it open, and four others in quick succession were necessary before it was forced. The robbers hurriedly gathered in its contents, consisting of specie shipments, drafts, coin and valuable negotiable paper, and retreated, keeping the train crew and passengers off at the point of their rifles.

Robbers Escape on Horses.

All three disappeared in the ravine and were seen later, one mounted on a bay horse, one upon a white horse and one upon a buckskin, heading southward at a furious gait, the booty being plainly visible, in a sack thrown across the saddle bows of the rider upon the buckskin horse.

As the hobo climbed over the tender to the locomotive he drew on a mask, rendering it almost impossible to secure a good description. Each of his confederates was masked and the only information obtainable regarding them is that one was evidently a half-breed. This was the robber upon the buckskin horse.

The gang headed for the Little Rockies range, lying across the Milk river, in an almost inaccessible country, consisting mainly of bad lands. Poses were immediately organized in pursuit, one by a sheriff who happened to be a passenger on the train. The chances of capturing the men are exceedingly thin, since they have several hours start of the poses, are thoroughly familiar with the country and have excellent mounts.

REWARD FOR ROBBERS.

Five Thousand Dollars Offered by the Great Northern.

St. Paul, July 5.—Reports of the express robbery in Montana were received in St. Paul late in the afternoon. It was ascertained at General Superintendent Ward's office that dynamite had been used in the robbery, although no details as to the amount of money secured were given out. The reports were at once communicated to David Allman, chief of the Great Northern secret service, and before 8 o'clock the coast system had posted a reward of $5,000 gold for the apprehension of the robbers. The reward offered is taken as evidence that the booty was heavy.

SOONERS INVADE LANDS.

Stake Out Choice Sections in Oklahoma Territory.

Reno, O. T., July 5.—More than 50,000 boomers camped and quartered along the margins of the Kiowa and Comanche lands about to be opened for settlement were thrown into excitement and rage when they heard that 1,000 "sooners" have already invaded the reservations and staked out the choicest sections of land.

It was the government's plan to distribute the 13,447 homestead claims by requiring qualified homesteaders to draw lots. The "sooners," however, have determined to fight what they call Uncle Sam's lottery scheme.

THE SECOND VICTORY.

Pennsylvanians Defeat Thames Rowing Club in Challenge Cup Race.

Henley-on-the-Thames, July 5.—The second day of the Henley regatta was signalized by another victory for the Americans, the oarsmen from the University of Pennsylvania defeating the Thames Rowing club and thus securing their second heat. The Leanders defeated the Belgian crew and the Pennsylvanians must now meet the Leanders in the final heat for the Grand Challenge Cup.

The results of the heats were as follows:

Grand Challenge Cup, third heat—Leander Rowing club beat the Belgian crew by three-quarters of a length. Time, 7:08.

Grand Challenge Cup, fourth heat—Pennsylvania University beat the Thames Rowing club by three lengths. Time, 7:22.

Soon after 11 o'clock the Leanders, paddling to the start for their race with the Belgians, were loudly applauded along their course, but their reception was quite eclipsed by that given to the Americans as, a few minutes later, they followed. The contrast in the style of the two crews, whom everybody expected to see fighting it out in the final heat, was more marked than ever.

There was only five minutes difference between the two races and no sooner had Umpire Williams sent the Leanders and Belgians off than Umpire Putman's launch took its place to start the Americans and the Thames crew. There was a capital start and the Pennsylvanians had three-fourths of a length lead before the top of the island was reached. They did half the distance in 3:30. Their opponents did the half in 3:42. Opposite the Leander enclosure the Pennsylvanians were three lengths ahead and although they again eased considerably and the others spurred, the Thames men were never able to make up anything.

Passing the grand stand the Americans could not resist a little spurt and they rowed past with a dozen strokes at the rate of 41 to the minute. The Americans had a very friendly reception and a number of their countrymen succeeded in giving them a very respectable college yell.

MINISTERS PROTEST.

Denver Divines Condemn Judge Palmer's Action.

Denver, July 5.—A committee of seven prominent clergymen, representing the various denominations, appointed at a meeting of ministers to draw up a statement expressing their views concerning Judge Palmer's action in the saloon contempt case, has mailed Governor Orman and Judge Palmer a letter which, after reviewing all the facts in the case and expressing a desire, "not by any criticism to impede the course of justice, but rather to support and uphold the judiciary," concludes as follows: "We desire to utter a profound and solemn protest against the act of Judge Palmer in tying up the police administration of the city by injunction."

MOUNTS FOR THE BRITONS.

Thousands of Animals Being Shipped From New Orleans.

New Orleans, July 5.—The South Africa horse and mule trade has shown great revival in the past few days. Four British transports have reached here this week to load animals for Cape Town, and four more are dated to arrive during the week. One thousand mules left on the Jamaican Wednesday, 500 mules and horses Thursday, and 1,500 mules and 1,000 horses will go later in the week. The British officers think the present activity will continue until Christmas. The British government has 8,000 head of mules and 7,000 horses at Kansas City, which will be shipped to New Orleans as fast as the vessels here can load them.

BALTIMORE BLAZE.

Fire Causes Damage Estimated at $450,000.

Baltimore, July 5.—The 6-story brick and iron building on North and Lexington streets, directly opposite the city hall, was destroyed by fire during the day. It took fully an hour to get the flames under control. All of the floors except the first were occupied by Hoen & Co., lithographers and printers. Their loss may reach $300,000 as they had many valuable cuts and lithographic apparatus which is almost impossible to replace.

Other occupants of the building, all of whom are on the first floor, lost about $150,000.

GENERAL WOOD BETTER.

Will Come to the United States as Soon as Possible.

Havana, July 5.—Governor General Wood was reported better, but his physicians advise him to take a trip to the United States as soon as possible. His condition will probably allow of this in about two weeks. Acting Governor Scott has ordered Senor Barcardi, mayor of Santiago, in reorganizing the police, to make selections from among members of the former force. The mayor discharged all the police on assuming office and has been appointing new ones.

THE CURRY OUTLAWS

GREAT NORTHERN TRAIN ROBBERIES IDENTIFIED AS THE TEXAS BANDITS.

FOSSE IN CLOSE PURSUIT

Sheriff Griffith With Forty-five Men Is Only Eight Miles Behind Them. Are Heading for the Bad Lands and It Will Be Difficult to Capture Them Should They Succeed in Reaching There.

Havre, Mon., July 5.—The train robbers who held up the Great Northern flyer at East Wagner have been recognized as the famous Curry outlaws. "Kid" Curry is the leader another is named Longhole and the third man's name is unknown. All speak the Texas dialect. A cow puncher riding north from the Missouri river met the three bandits about 70 miles south of Malta. They asked the cow puncher to notify the men following them that they were going south. The cow puncher had only gone about four miles when he met Sheriff Griffith with a posse of 45 men, comprising the best gun men in Eastern Montana. They were only about eight miles behind the robbers, but the robbers have the advantage, having relay horses, changing about 50 miles south of the scene of the robbery. About 20 miles further south will take the bandits into the Bad Lands. Sheriff Griffith with his men is making every effort to catch them before they reach the Bad Lands, as it will be difficult to catch them should they succeed in reaching them. The posse is growing larger constantly and horses are being changed frequently. The cow puncher said the third man in the party had a bandage around his head. This was probably caused by one of two shots fired by Sheriff Griffith, who was on the train.

MADE A BIG HAUL.

Detailed Account of the Great Northern Express Robbery.

Great Falls, Mon., July 5.—The Great Northern Transcontinental Train No. 3 was held up at Wagner, Mon., 196 miles east of Great Falls, at 3 p. m. by three masked men, who blew open the express car and wrecked the through safe with dynamite, securing $83,000. The robbery, in daylight, was one of the boldest that ever occurred in the West.

One of the robbers boarded the "blind baggage" car at Hinsdale, a station about 20 miles east of Wagner. He appeared to be a common hobo, but when the conductor discovered him at a stop almost immediately afterward, he drew a heavy Colt's revolver and ordered him to return to the rear of the train on penalty of instant death. The hobo then climbed over the locomotive tender and at the point of his revolver compelled the engineer and fireman to stop the train at a ravine a few miles east of Wagner, where his confederates, two in number, both masked, lay in wait. The hobo then compelled the engineer and fireman to abandon the engine. Firing began on both sides of the train as it came to a stop.

Three Passengers Injured.

Passengers on the train began to look out of the windows and a brakeman alighted on one side of the train,

while Traveling Auditor Douglas alighted on the opposite side. They instantly became the targets of Winchester in the hands of the robbers, but both escaped without injury. A passenger, the tourist coach, who was leaning out of the window, was struck by a bullet and seriously injured. Other passengers were shot, but no one was seriously injured.

To wreck the door of the express car with dynamite, with which both the confederates that appeared from the ravine were liberally supplied, was the work of an instant. The express messenger was compelled to leave the car at the point of a rifle and the through safe was immediately dynamited. The first charge did not break it open, and four others in quick succession were necessary before it was forced. The robbers hurriedly gathered in its contents, consisting of specie shipments, drafts, coin and valuable negotiable paper, and retreated, keeping the train crew and passengers off at the point of their rifles.

Robbers Escape on Horses. All three disappeared in the ravine and were seen later, one mounted on a bay horse, one upon a white horse and one upon a buckskin, heading southward at a furious gait, the booty being plainly visible, in a sack thrown across the saddle bows of the rider upon the buckskin horse.

As the hobo climbed over the tender to the locomotive he drew on a mask, rendering it almost impossible to secure a good description. Each of his confederates was masked and the only information obtainable regarding them is that one was evidently a half-breed. This was the robber upon the buckskin horse.

The gang headed for the Little Rockies range, lying across the Milk river, in an almost inaccessible country, consisting mainly of bad lands. Poses were immediately organized in pursuit, one by a sheriff who happened to be a passenger on the train. The chances of capturing the men are exceedingly thin, since they have several hours start of the poses, are thoroughly familiar with the country and have excellent mounts.

REWARD FOR ROBBERS.

Five Thousand Dollars Offered by the Great Northern.

St. Paul, July 5.—Reports of the express robbery in Montana were received in St. Paul late in the afternoon. It was ascertained at General Superintendent Ward's office that dynamite had been used in the robbery, although no details as to the amount of money secured were given out. The reports were at once communicated to David Allman, chief of the Great Northern secret service, and before 8 o'clock the coast system had posted a reward of $5,000 gold for the apprehension of the robbers. The reward offered is taken as evidence that the booty was heavy.

SOONERS INVADE LANDS.

Stake Out Choice Sections in Oklahoma Territory.

Reno, O. T., July 5.—More than 50,000 boomers camped and quartered along the margins of the Kiowa and Comanche lands about to be opened for settlement were thrown into excitement and rage when they heard that 1,000 "sooners" have already invaded the reservations and staked out the choicest sections of land.

It was the government's plan to distribute the 13,447 homestead claims by requiring qualified homesteaders to draw lots. The "sooners," however, have determined to fight what they call Uncle Sam's lottery scheme.

PROCLAIMS FREE TRADE

PORTO RICAN ASSEMBLY DECLARES THE ISLANDS SELF-SUPPORTING.

ALLEN SIGNS RESOLUTION

President Requested to Issue the Proclamation July 25—Considered the Most Important Act Ever Passed by the Assembly—Civil Government Formally Inaugurated in the Philippine Islands.

Sau Juan, Porto Rico, July 5.—In a joint session lasting three hours the Porto Rican assembly unanimously passed the free trade resolution. The assembly hall was crowded with spectators and cheers greeted the announcement that Governor Allen had signed the resolution.

The free trade resolution began with a preamble in which reference is made to section 3 of the Foraker law. The resolution then continues:

"The Porto Rican assembly, in extra session and acting pursuant to the instructions of congress, does hereby notify the president of the United States that by virtue of the Hollander act and other acts it has enacted and put into operation a system of local taxation to meet the necessities of insular government, and it hereby directs that a copy of this joint resolution be presented to the president of the United States, and it requests that Governor Allen deliver the resolution in question to President McKinley to the end that the proclamation may be made by him, and if it shall seem wise and proper to the president of the United States the assembly requests that his proclamation be issued July 25, as that day is being established a legal Porto Rican holiday to commemorate the anniversary of the

Coming of the American Flag.
Governor Allen personally read a message before the assembly in which he exhaustively reviewed the financial situation of the island and showed that Porto Rico possessed abundant resources for its needs without drawing upon customs receipts.

Mr. Hollander's report upon the island's resources from which revenue could be derived was considered sufficiently definite to warrant the joint resolution in favor of free trade. The resolution was introduced to the house by Senor Morales. Mr. Hollander, in a long speech, reviewed the workings of the new tax law. He said:

"Present conditions make this joint resolution possible and the insular assembly can henceforth dispense with the revenues accruing from Porto Rican customs."

The resolution passed at 12:45 and was signed by Governor Allen.

The action of the assembly is considered to be the most important taken by it since the inauguration of Governor Allen.

TAFT SWORN IN.

Civil Government Formally Inaugurated in the Philippine Islands.

Manila, July 5.—Civil government in the Philippines has been auspiciously inaugurated. Commissioner Taft was escorted by General MacArthur and General Chaffee from the palace to a great temporary tribune just outside the Plaza Palacio. Standing on a projecting center of the tribune, Mr. William H. Taft, the new civil governor of the Philippines, took the oath of office administered by Chief Justice Arellano. Governor Taft was then introduced by General MacArthur, the guns of Fort Santiago being fired by way of a salute.

A feature of the inaugural address of Governor Taft was the announcement that on Sept. 1, 1901, the commission would be increased by the appointment of three native members. Dr. Wardo Detavera, Benito Legarda and Jose Luzuriaga. Before Sept. 1 departments will exist as follows, heads having been arranged for thus: Interior, Worcester; commerce and police, Wright; justice and finance, Ide; public instruction, Moses.

Of the 27 provinces organized Civil Governor Taft said the insurrection still exists in five. This will cause the continuance of the military government in these sections. Sixteen additional provinces are reported without insurrections, but as yet they have not been organized. Four provinces are not ready for civil government.

For Preservation of Order.

The speaker predicted that with the concentration of troops into larger garrisons it would be necessary for the people to assist the police in the preservation of order. Fleet launches will be procured, he said, which will facilitate communication among the provinces as well as aid the postal and revenue departments. In connection with educational efforts Civil Governor Taft said that adults should be educated by an observation of American methods. He said that there was a reasonable hope that congress would provide a tariff suitable, one that would assist in the development of the Philippines, instead of an application of the United States tariff.

According to the civil governor, there is an unexpended balance in the insular treasury of $3,700,000 and an annual income of $10,000,000.

He said that any possible friction between civil and military subordinates should be discouraged. The patriotism of the leading Filipinos was commended. In conclusion, Civil Governor Taft reiterated a hope expressed by the president that in the future the inhabitants would be grateful for the American Philippines victories, and that they would be indissolubly linked in ties of affection with the common country.

Cheered McKinley's Message.

The reading of President McKinley's message of congratulation was enthusiastically cheered. The entire front of the tribune, a block long, was decorated with flags, and several hundred officers, with their families and friends, were seated therein. General MacArthur, Civil Governor Taft and Military Governor Chaffee occupied the center, with the other generals on their right. Rear Admiral Kempff and his staff were on their left. The United States commissioners and justices of the supreme court were in the immediate rear with the consuls. The mass of the people stood in the park opposite. The Filipino leaders were there, but there were more Americans than Filipinos present.

The transfer of the military authority to General Chaffee was carried out in the presence of the generals in General MacArthur's office. There was no formality. General MacArthur presented the new commander to the generals and remarked:

"I bequeath to you all my troubles." All the high civil and army officers accompanied MacArthur to the river front, where he formally embarked. Governor Taft and General Chaffee then returned to the palace and received the public.

ASPHALT CONFLICT.

Probability of a Clash of Armed Forces in Venezuela.

San Juan, Porto Rico, July 5.—According to passengers who have arrived here on a steamship from Venezuela, the Warner-Quinlan syndicate has taken possession of the Felicidad asphalt mines under the authority of a decree by state courts.

An armed force, said the passengers, was necessary to enforce the decree. The New York & Bermudez company subsequently had a strong guard re-enter the property.

Mr. Quinlan will petition the government, on behalf of his syndicate, to have troops maintain possession of the mines for his syndicate. This request, it is thought, will be granted. It is probable that a conflict will take place.

The federal court of Venezuela is still considering the appeal regarding the title to the asphalt mines.

A ministerial crisis has been averted in Venezuela, and President Castro will soon make a tour of the republic.

HEARD WU TING FANG.

Chinese Minister Fourth of July Orator at Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, July 5.—Several thousand persons gathered in Independence square to see and hear Wu Ting Fang, the Chinese minister, orator of the day at the municipal celebration of Independence day. The friendly reception given the distinguished guest must have allayed all fears for his safety, based on the fact that he received an anonymous letter threatening him with bodily harm.

When the Chinese diplomat stepped to the front of the platform he was given a rousing reception and it was some time before quiet could be restored. His speech was heard with marked attention and every patriotic utterance was loudly cheered.

STARTS FOR DETROIT.

Train Bearing Governor Pingree's Body Leaves New York.

New York, July 5.—The body of Hazen S. Pingree, former governor of Michigan, who died while abroad, was started for Detroit during the afternoon from the Grand Central station. The funeral train consisted of three cars. The car in which the coffin rested was draped in black cloth and displayed on either side a large oil painting of the dead man.

There were no services at the time of the removal to the train. William C. Maybury, mayor of Detroit, with a delegation of about 25 persons from that city, including some of the former staff of Mr. Pingree when he was governor, attended the body.

Prince Pleads Not Guilty.

Kansas City, July 5.—Will Prince, indicted for murder in the first degree as an accessory to the killing of Philip H. Kennedy by his sister, pleaded not guilty. His trial was set for the September term. Lulu Prince Kennedy, under a 10 years' sentence for the murder, will ask to remain in the county jail until after her brother's trial so that she may testify in his behalf.

PREPARE FOR UPRISING

CHINESE IN SHEN SI PROVINCE GETTING READY TO MAKE TROUBLE.

BY DIRECTION OF EMPRESS

Missionaries Are Returning to Shan Tung, Where They Are Well Received by the Natives—Express the Opinion That the Calm Will Not Continue—Indemnities for Mission Property Adjusted.

Berlin, July 5.—A special dispatch to The Volkszeitung from China says that according to advices received at mission headquarters many missionaries have returned to the interior of Shan Tung province, where they were well received by the Chinese. The indemnities for mission property destroyed and missionaries and native Christians killed have nearly all been adjusted, but missionaries express the opinion that the calm will not continue. A missionary from Shen Si province reports that following the directions of the dowager empress great preparations are being made for an uprising in that country.

ORDINARY THIEVES.

Robbers Arrested in China Were Not American Soldiers.

Peking, July 5.—Investigation proves that the five men who were arrested for robberies committed in Sansho City are not American soldiers as alleged, but ordinary thieves. Orders have been issued to send them to Tien Tsin for trial by the consular court there. There are a large number of such Americans in North China, whose acts greatly injure the national reputation.

The Fourth at Peking.

Peking, July 5.—The Fourth was celebrated here by the United States legation guard with athletic games and fireworks. The German minister, Dr. Mumm von Schwarzenstein, gave a dinner at the German legation to the officers of the American guard. Messrs. Squires and Rockhill and other members of the United States legation celebrated the Fourth at the summer legation in the hills.

LISTENED TO MR. BRYAN.

Delivers the Independence Day Oration at Montague, Tenn.

Montague, Tenn., July 5.—William Jennings Bryan delivered the Independence day oration here. In the course of his address he said it would be a slander on those who wrote the Declaration of Independence to say that it was promulgated as a temporary expedient. He declared the Constitution and Declaration to be inseparable. Mr. Bryan said the nation until it forsakes the doctrine of union will never outgrow the Declaration until it forsakes the doctrine of the consent of the governed. The abandonment of the Declaration, he averred, would cause us to lose the respect of all nations and the adoption of a brute force policy would ultimately lead to the downfall of the republic. Imperialism, he said, is the logical outcome of the commercial spirit, and the country is engaged in a war of conquest for no other reason than that those in charge of the government think the exploitation of the Philippines will prove profitable. The tendency of the times, he said, is toward the creation of an aristocracy of wealth and the relinquishment of those virtues that are essential to the well being of a free and respectable people.

ACTION IS SIGNIFICANT.

Keystone Rolling Company Signs the Amalgamated Scale.

Pittsburg, July 5.—The officials of the Keystone Rolling company of this city have signed the Amalgamated Association wage agreement. The close relations existing between the Keystone company and National Tube company, one of the largest constituent companies of the United States Steel corporation, makes the signing of the scale a significant action in view of the complications existing between the Amalgamated Association and the American Sheet Steel company, another part of the big steel combine.

KILLED BY THE HEAT.

Bernard Morris of New York Dies in His 110th Year.

New York, July 5.—Bernard Morris, who died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Sarah Cohen, in Brooklyn, on Tuesday night, from the effect of heat, was in his 110th year, and until Thursday of last week was hale and hearty as any man of three score and ten. He went about his work in Prospect Park, until a week ago. Mr. Morris was born in Central Port, County Cavan, Ireland. He came to the United States in 1822.

Henley-on-the-Thames, July 5.—The second day of the Henley regatta was signaled by another victory for the Americans, the oarsmen from the University of Pennsylvania defeating the Thames Rowing club and thus securing their second heat. The Leanders defeated the Belgian crew and the Pennsylvanians must now meet the Leanders in the final heat for the Grand Challenge Cup.

The results of the heats were as follows:

Grand Challenge Cup, third heat—Leander Rowing club beat the Belgian crew by three-quarters of a length. Time, 7:08.

Grand Challenge Cup, fourth heat—Pennsylvania University beat the Thames Rowing club by three lengths. Time, 7:22.

Soon after 11 o'clock the Leanders, paddling to the start for their race with the Belgians, were loudly applauded along their course, but their reception was quite eclipsed by that given to the Americans as, a few minutes later, they followed. Fair tonight and Saturday. Change in temperature.

STILLWATER's prison population record has been broken, the number reaching 544 on Sunday last which is one greater than ever before.

THE postmaster at Long Prairie serves notice that he is still charging a two-cent revenue on money orders, notwithstanding the fact that the war tax was removed July 1st.

THE mud can, torpedo cane, giant firecracker and toy cannon furnished employment for the doctors yesterday throughout the country. It's a pretty slow town that can't keep the physicians busy on the Fourth of July.

THOSE people who are predicting all kinds of trouble in the new Sixth district are undoubtedly the ones who most desire to see such a state of affairs. Don't worry, the Sixth will take care of itself in a very satisfactory manner.

THE assessor of Ramsey county has listed over $500,000 of chattel mortgages on his books for taxation this being the first time in the history of the county that chattel security has been called on to contribute to the public funds. The installment houses of St. Paul are the ones whom this burden will fall on most heavily.

THERE are some mighty mean men at the head of the lakes and among them Henry Skerwesky takes front rank. Because his son touched off a cannon fire cracker under the old gentleman's chair while the latter was at his morning devotions, thereby raising him to the ceiling, he had the boy arrested and placed in jail.

RAMSEY county is about to enforce the law regarding the sealing of weights and measures and the county treasurer, who under the state law is the official sealer of weights, will call on all merchants and dealers and see that their weights and measures reach the standard. ## ENGINEER WHITELEY REPORTS.

The Fourth Street North Paving Matter Aired at Meeting of City Council.

A special meeting of the city council was held on Wednesday evening with President Crustin in the chair. Those present were: Alderman Halladay, Purdy, Wright, Rowley and Doran.

The meeting, it will be remembered, was called for the purpose of hearing the recommendation of City Engineer Whiteley on the Fourth street north paving matter and to settle the claim against the city with Contractor Swartz, if possible.

The city engineer's report was as follows:

"I would report to your honorable body that M. K. Swartz has received on his contract of $3,059.75 for grading, curbing and paving 4th street north the sum of $2,746.95, and there remains due on the original contract $312.80 which I would recommend paid, when he fulfils the conditions of the specifications on page 7 to wit: 'Before the final estimate will be allowed by the common council, the contractor will be required to sign a certificate on said estimate that he will accept the same as a settlement in full of all claims against the city of Brainerd.'

The contractor has also done the additional work of putting crushed rock instead of gravel on the street crossings, being equivalent to 61 and one-half lots, at $4.00 per lot, amounting to $246.00, making a balance due Mr. Swartz, if the additional amount is allowed for crushed rock of $558.80."

The matter was discussed at length and it was moved and carried that the report be accepted and placed on file. The council, on motion, then decided to allow Contractor Swartz the $312.80, provided he sign a release to the city in full settlement of the contract.

Contractor Swartz was seen by a representative of THE DISPATCH yesterday and it is ascertained that he will sign no statement of this kind. He stated that he would accept what they were willing to pay him on account but that was all. He will at once begin suit against the city to recover the full amount of the contract, including the $4.00 per lot, which is claimed as an extra compensation for putting in crushed rock instead of gravel, as called for in the original contract.

There was some discussion regarding the granting of a license to the Pawnee Bill wild west shows. City Clerk Low charged the advance agent but $15, which is the amount usually charged for shows other than regular ring circuses. The advance agent evidently misrepresented matters to Mr. Low, as he stated that the show was on the order of the Gentry organization, but it has been learned since that there are something like five hundred horses and it requires thirty cars to transport the outfit from place to place. The chief of police was instructed to try and get more out of the management of the shows.

Mayor Halsted was at the meeting of the council and he took exception to the manner in which the committee appointed sometime ago to investigate the matter of Sunday saloon law violations reported the matter to the city council. It will be remembered that the committee reported that they had called on the mayor and he had informed them that he never ordered the saloons to be closed, and he further stated that there was no city ordinance covering the matter. Mayor Halsted stated Wednesday evening that Chairman Erickson, of the committee evidently misunderstood what he said. The mayor stated that he did say that it was not the duty of the executive of a city to go around to tell people what the law was; that he was not expected to inform men that it was a crime to steal, etc., and he considered the Sunday closing matter in the same light.

Menace of Impure Water.

A report of Professor F. L. Washburn, geologist of the University of Oregon, on drinking water was recently published in the Portland Oregonian. The following introductory remarks of Professor Washburn are here published, as they are applicable to other sections besides Oregon:

"Probably there is no greater menace to public health than our ignorance of the character of the water which we drink. If it be clear and tasteless, we remark upon its excellence. Even if it is discolored or odoriferous from time to time we endure it and make no special effort to examine it scientifically or the environments of its source—well or reservoir or river or brook, as the case may be. Many a landowner in Oregon has his barn and outhouses on a slope below his dwelling house and about 40 feet, more or less, from the latter. At a greater or less distance from his back door we find a dug well, and he imagines, overlooking the regrettable fact that slops are often thrown out of said door, that the barn being on a level below his well, there can be no drainage whatever from his various outhouses into the source of his water supply. He does not realize that while Mother Earth smiles at him on the surface she may be playing him an ugly trick below the surface, for, notwithstanding the aforesaid slope, we may find and frequently do find the strata arranged in such a way that there is drainage from the barn toward the house.

"It is evident that under these conditions there will be seepage from the barn toward the well, and the water of the latter will be contaminated."

Menace of Impure Water.

A report of Professor F. L. Washburn, geologist of the University of Oregon, on drinking water was recently published in the Portland Oregonian. The following introductory remarks of Professor Washburn are here published, as they are applicable to other sections besides Oregon:

"Probably there is no greater menace to public health than our ignorance of the character of the water which we drink. If it be clear and tasteless, we remark upon its excellence. Even if it is discolored or odoriferous from time to time we endure it and make no special effort to examine it scientifically or the environments of its source—well or reservoir or river or brook, as the case may be. Many a landowner in Oregon has his barn and outhouses on a slope below his dwelling house and about 40 feet, more or less, from the latter. At a greater or less distance from his back door we find a dug well, and he imagines, overlooking the regrettable fact that slops are often thrown out of said door, that the barn being on a level below his well, there can be no drainage whatever from his various outhouses into the source of his water supply. He does not realize that while Mother Earth smiles at him on the surface she may be playing him an ugly trick below the surface, for, notwithstanding the aforesaid slope, we may find and frequently do find the strata arranged in such a way that there is drainage from the barn toward the house.

"It is evident that under these conditions there will be seepage from the barn toward the well, and the water of the latter will be contaminated."

STILLWATER's prison population record has been broken, the number reaching 544 on Sunday last which is one greater than ever before.

THE postmaster at Long Prairie serves notice that he is still charging a two-cent revenue on money orders, notwithstanding the fact that the war tax was removed July 1st.

THE mud can, torpedo cane, giant firecracker and toy cannon furnished employment for the doctors yesterday throughout the country. It's a pretty slow town that can't keep the physicians busy on the Fourth of July.

THOSE people who are predicting all kinds of trouble in the new Sixth district are undoubtedly the ones who most desire to see such a state of affairs. Don't worry, the Sixth will take care of itself in a very satisfactory manner.

THE assessor of Ramsey county has listed over $500,000 of chattel mortgages on his books for taxation this being the first time in the history of the county that chattel security has been called on to contribute to the public funds. The installment houses of St. Paul are the ones whom this burden will fall on most heavily.

THERE are some mighty mean men at the head of the lakes and among them Henry Skervesky takes front rank. Because his son touched off a cannon fire cracker under the old gentleman's chair while the latter was at his morning devotions, thereby raising him to the ceiling, he had the boy arrested and placed in jail.

RAMSEY county is about to enforce the law regarding the sealing of weights and measures and the county treasurer, who under the state law is the official sealer of weights, will call on all merchants and dealers and see that their weights and measures reach the standard. The law is one which is universally disregarded throughout the state.

At Duluth Humane Officer H. C. D. Withrow armed with a warrant proposed to arrest the manager of Pawnee Bill's side show for exhibiting and keeping in captivity a wild or insane man more fit for an asylum than a circus. But after a confidential talk with the manager in which the humane officer was told that "Basco, the Wild Man of Borneo" was a fake pure and simple the matter was dropped.

CURBSTONE CHAT.

Capt. Adair: The bowery dance for the benefit of Company F in Gardner's hall was a huge success. There were not many out in the afternoon but in the evening there was an unusually large crowd and those in charge of the affair are very much elated.

Attorney Crowell: Talk about ball games. I never saw a better game in the northern part of the state than the one that was played at Aitkin yesterday. The score was 3 to 0 and those fielders were up to their knees in water. It was a great game.

Dr. Thabes: Persons who neglect to report contagious diseases in the future will be liable to be dealt with according to the law. We have now succeeded in checking any run of smallpox, but those who believe that there is anything of the kind prevalent should report to the health officer and the matter will be attended to at once.

ENGINEER WHITELEY REPORTS.

The Fourth Street North Paving Matter Aired at Meeting of City Council.

A special meeting of the city council was held on Wednesday evening with President Crustin in the chair. Those present were: Aldermen Halladay, Purdy, Wright, Rowley and Doran.

The meeting, it will be remembered, was called for the purpose of hearing the recommendation of City Engineer Whiteley on the Fourth street north paving matter and to settle the claim against the city with Contractor Swartz, if possible.

The city engineer's report was as follows:

"I would report to your honorable body that M. K. Swartz has received on his contract of $3,059.75 for grading, curbing and paving 4th street north the sum of $2,746.95, and there remains due on the original contract $312.80 which I would recommend paid, when he fulfills the conditions of the specifications on page 7 to wit: 'Before the final estimate will be allowed by the common council, the contractor will be required to sign a certificate on said estimate that he will accept the same as a settlement in full of all claims against the city of Brainerd.'

The contractor has also done the additional work of putting crushed rock instead of gravel on the street crossings, being equivalent to 61 and one-half lots, at $4.00 per lot, amounting to $246.00, making a balance due Mr. Swartz, if the additional amount is allowed for crushed rock of $563.80."

The matter was discussed at length and it was moved and carried that the report be accepted and placed on file. The council, on motion, then decided to allow Contractor Swartz the $312.80, provided he sign a release to the city in full settlement of the contract.

Contractor Swartz was seen by a representative of THE DISPATCH yesterday and it is ascertained that he will sign no statement of this kind. He stated that he would accept what they were willing to pay him on account but that was all. He will at once begin suit against the city to recover the full amount of the contract, including the $4.00 per lot, which is claimed as an extra compensation for putting in crushed rock instead of gravel, as called for in the original contract.

There was some discussion regarding the granting of a license to the Pawnee Bill wild west show. City Clerk Low charged the advance agent but $15, which is the amount usually charged for shows other than regular ring circuses. The advance agent evidently misrepresented matters to Mr. Low, as he stated that the show was on the order of the Gentry organization, but it has been learned since that there are something like five hundred horses and it requires thirty cars to transport the outfit from place to place. The chief of police was instructed to try and get more out of the management of the shows.

Mayor Halsted was at the meeting of the council and he took exception to the manner in which the committee appointed sometime ago to investigate the matter of Sunday saloon law violations reported the matter to the city council. It will be remembered that the committee reported that they had called on the mayor and he had informed them that he never ordered the saloons to be closed, and he further stated that there was no city ordinance covering the matter. Mayor Halsted stated Wednesday evening that Chairman Erickson, of the committee evidently misunderstood what he said. The mayor stated that he did say that it was not the duty of the executive of a city to go around to tell people what the law was; that he was not expected to inform men that it was a crime to steal, etc., and he considered the Sunday closing matter in the same light.

Menace of Impure Water.

A report of Professor F. L. Washburn, geologist of the University of Oregon, on drinking water was recently published in the Portland Oregonian. The following introductory remarks of Professor Washburn are here published, as they are applicable to other sections besides Oregon:

"Probably there is no greater menace to public health than our ignorance of the character of the water which we drink. If it be clear and tasteless, we remark upon its excellence. Even if it is discolored or odoriferous from time to time we endure it and make no special effort to examine it scientifically or the environments of its source—well or reservoir or river or brook, as the case may be. Many a landowner in Oregon has his barn and outhouses on a slope below his dwelling house and about 40 feet, more or less, from the latter. At a greater or less distance from his back door we find a dug well, and he imagines, overlooking the regrettable fact that slops are often thrown out of said door, that the barn being on a level below his well, there can be no drainage whatever from his various outhouses into the source of his water supply. He does not realize that while Mother Earth smiles at him on the surface she may be playing him an ugly trick below the surface, for, notwithstanding the aforesaid slope, we may find and frequently do find the strata arranged in such a way that there is drainage from the barn toward the house.

PICKPOCKETS GET IN THEIR WORK.

Under Eye of Officer of the Law
A Man is Relieved of
His Money.

GANG SUPPOSED TO BE AT WORK

The Man Who did the Deed was
in Officers Hands but Man-
aged to Escape.

One of the most daring holdups in the history of this city was perpetrated this noon when the Duluth passenger train was pulling into the city and as a result S. Nordskow, of Twin Valley, is minus $200.

The fleeing of a victim was so thoroughly accomplished by a gang of experienced pickpockets that even the passengers who were on the train did not realize what had happened, until it was all over and the man who did the deed had made his escape.

Nordskow and a friend by the name of A. Olson, who lives in the southern part of the state, had been up to Aitkin on business and were returning this morning intending to take the first train for their home.

Everything went lovely until the train was pulling into the station at Brainerd. Two men who, it appears, had boarded the train at Aitkin, came into the smoker where the two men above mentioned were seated and one of them leaned over to Nordskow at the same time giving him a punch in the side saying, "I guess I dropped my ticket here; let me hunt for it." When the hunt was all over Nordskow realized that he had been touched. He carried in his hip pocket a wallet which contained $200 in bills.

Before reaching the depot he notified his partner and as they alighted from the train Olson grabbed the man, and Nordskow went to get a policeman. Officer Derocher was on duty and he went to place the man under arrest. The man had nothing on his person, not even a cent of money, and he stated that he had nothing to do with the theft of the money and he was released.

Nordskow was about the craziest man in the city about that time and he jumped around like a wild man. There was nothing for him to do but take his medicine and learn from experience what it is to go up against a genuine pickpocket gang. There was evidently more than the one man in the deal when he picked Nordskow's pocket he simply passed the wad to someone else, and this man got away from the police in the excitement.

The following are the names of those who have been drawn to serve on the grand jury:

S. L. Bean, J. J. Dye, C. H. Scott, W. O. Bennington, Andrew Miller, Samuel R. Adair, Wm. Brown, C. H. Paine, Geo. St. Clair, Chas. Mudge, F. C. Bolin, Jens Molstad, R. Wellwood, P. H. S. Aspholm, J. ## TWO ACCIDENTS.

Lightning Does Some Damage on South
Side—Accidental Shooting Wednesday Night.

There was rather a lively time around L. W. Burrell's blacksmith shop Wednesday evening, and for a time it was thought that one man at least would suffer serious injuries. Mr. Burrell, who, besides being a blacksmith is a gunsmith, was engaged in sighting a rifle. A man by the name of George Molgren, who works at the blacksmith shop, had just stepped out from the shop in the back yard. Instead of returning to the shop he went into a side room and it was in this direction that Mr. Burrell was aiming the rifle to get the right sight.

Molgren happened to get in the way of one of the bullets and was quite badly wounded in the left leg, the ball striking him just above the ankle. Dr. Camp was called and the wound was dressed. While it was a very painful injury it is not thought that Mr. Molgren will be laid up for more than a day or two.

During the heavy electric storm on 4th of July morning several homes and dwellings in the city came in contact with the electric current. The house occupied by John Paulson on Seventh street south was struck. Mr. Paulson, who was in bed received a severe blow on the head by a fall after the lightning had struck the house. He tried to get out of bed and in doing so he fell to the floor, his head striking on a sharp edge of the bed. He was at once removed to the N. P. Sanitarium, where the wounds were dressed. It is not thought the wounds will prove serious but he will be laid up for some time.

Pawnee Bill's great wild west show has arrived. It was intended to give the performances at Camp Holland, but the grounds are too wet and the large tents are being pitched on Main street north, near the county jail.

The exhibitions this afternoon and evening will be thrilling ones, calculated to stir the blood of even frontier men, and will consist of reproductions and daring deeds of the far west together with the novelties of a high order. Indians, Costacks, Arabs, Cowboys, Japanese, Mexicans, Gauchos, Daring Lady Equestrians in heroic pastimes, on foot and in the saddle. Champion rifle and pistol shots, adepts with the bow and arrow, the spear and bolus, and as a special feature those strange people, the Bushmen from Australia. A word about them may not be amiss.

The Australian Boomerang Throwers and Black Trackers are the lowest of the human family—a people that have no fixed abode or marriage ceremony, do not bury their dead or till the soil, wear little or no clothing, just one step above the animal kingdom, but possessed of a secret power of controlling the missile of primitive man, known as "Come Back" Boomerang, universally regarded as the most peculiar, and wierd weapon in existence for the wonderful skill exhibited in its invention and construction, the origin of its shape and diversity of its distribution, its remarkable power of returning to the thrower when it has achieved its course, after performing extraordinary evolutions and its survival to the present day.

A Man is Relieved of
His Money.

GANG SUPPOSED TO BE AT WORK

The Man Who did the Deed was
in Officers Hands but Man-
aged to Escape.

One of the most daring holdups in the history of this city was perpetrated this noon when the Duluth passenger train was pulling into the city and as a result S. Nordskow, of Twin Valley, is minus $200.

The fleeing of a victim was so thoroughly accomplished by a gang of experienced pickpockets that even the passengers who were on the train did not realize what had happened, until it was all over and the man who did the deed had made his escape.

Nordskow and a friend by the name of A. Olson, who lives in the southern part of the state, had been up to Aitkin on business and were returning this morning intending to take the first train for their home.

Everything went lovely until the train was pulling into the station at Brainerd. Two men who, it appears, had boarded the train at Aitkin, came into the smoker where the two men above mentioned were seated and one of them leaned over to Nordskow at the same time giving him a punch in the side saying, "I guess I dropped my ticket here; let me hunt for it." When the hunt was all over Nordskow realized that he had been touched. He carried in his hip pocket a wallet which contained $200 in bills.

Before reaching the depot he notified his partner and as they alighted from the train Olson grabbed the man, and Nordskow went to get a policeman. Officer Derocher was on duty and he went to place the man under arrest. The man had nothing on his person, not even a cent of money, and he stated that he had nothing to do with the theft of the money and he was released.

Nordskow was about the craziest man in the city about that time and he jumped around like a wild man. There was nothing for him to do but take his medicine and learn from experience what it is to go up against a genuine pickpocket gang. There was evidently more than the one man in the deal and when he picked Nordskow's pocket he simply passed the wad to someone else, and this man got away from the police in the excitement.

BASE BALL.

The Clerks of the Shops Do Up the City

Clerks Yesterday Afternoon
on the Diamond.

There was rather a large crowd out to witness the game of base ball yesterday afternoon between the clerks of the city and the clerks of the Northern Pacific shops.

The boys from the shops were too many for the other fellows and at any stage of the game the clerks from the city did not appear to be in it. The shop boys had Watson in the box and he twirled the ball like an old timer. Witham, the old veteran player, was behind the bat and he ate them all up.

For the city clerks, J. O'Brien was behind the bat and at the beginning of the game E. E. Reiley was in the box. The latter was substituted by F. Murphy before the close of the game, however, and he pitched a good article of ball.

The score was 20 to 13, in favor of shop clerks. There was a very good attendance but the library did not take in much money on the game, there not being a disposition on the part of those present to liquidate.

The Orioles returned last night from Verdale where they played a game of ball yesterday afternoon with the team from Perham. Perham won by a score of 6 to 3.

TWO ACCIDENTS.

Lightning Does Some Damage on South

Side—Accidental Shooting Wednesday Night.

There was rather a lively time around L. W. Burrell's blacksmith shop Wednesday evening, and for a time it was thought that one man at least would suffer serious injuries. Mr. Burrell, who, besides being a blacksmith is a gunsmith, was engaged in sighting a rifle. A man by the name of George Molgren, who works at the blacksmith shop, had just stepped out from the shop in the back yard. Instead of returning to the shop he went into a side room and it was in this direction that Mr. Burrell was aiming the rifle to get the right sight.

Molgren happened to get in the way of one of the bullets and was quite badly wounded in the left leg, the ball striking him just above the ankle. Dr. Camp was called and the wound was dressed. While it was a very painful injury it is not thought that Mr. Molgren will be laid up for more than a day or two.

There was rather a large crowd out to witness the game of base ball yesterday afternoon between the clerks of the city and the clerks of the Northern Pacific shops.

The boys from the shops were too many for the other fellows and at any stage of the game the clerks from the city did not appear to be in it. The shop boys had Watson in the box and he twirled the ball like an old timer. Witham, the old veteran player, was behind the bat and he ate them all up.

For the city clerks, J. O'Brien was behind the bat and at the beginning of the game E. E. Reiley was in the box. The latter was substituted by F. Murphy before the close of the game, however, and he pitched a good article of ball.

The score was 20 to 13, in favor of shop clerks. There was a very good attendance but the library did not take in much money on the game, there not being a disposition on the part of those present to liquidate.

The Orioles returned last night from Verndale where they played a game of ball yesterday afternoon with the team from Perham. Perham won by a score of 6 to 3.

TWO ACCIDENTS.

Lightning Does Some Damage on South
Side—Accidental Shooting Wed-
nesday Night.

There was rather a lively time around L. W. Burrell's blacksmith shop Wednesday evening, and for a time it was thought that one man at least would suffer serious injuries. Mr. Burrell, who, besides being a blacksmith is a gunsmith, was engaged in sighting a rifle. A man by the name of George Molgren, who works at the blacksmith shop, had just stepped out from the shop in the back yard. Instead of returning to the shop he went into a side room and it was in this direction that Mr. Burrell was aiming the rifle to get the right sight.

Molgren happened to get in the way of one of the bullets and was quite badly wounded in the left leg, the ball striking him just above the ankle. Dr. Camp was called and the wound was dressed. While it was a very painful injury it is not thought that Mr. Molgren will be laid up for more than a day or two.

During the heavy electric storm on 4th of July morning several homes and dwellings in the city came in contact with the electric current. The house occupied by John Paulson on Seventh street south was struck. Mr. Paulson, who was in bed received a severe blow on the head by a fall after the lightning had struck the house. He tried to get out of bed and in doing so he fell to the floor, his head striking on a sharp edge of the bed. He was at once removed to the N. P. Sanitarium, where the wounds were dressed. It is not thought the wounds will prove serious but he will be laid up for some time.

A Pretty Wedding Solemnized Four Miles
and a half From The City
Wednesday.

On Wednesday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents four miles and a half northwest of the city, Mr. William T. McCloskey and Miss Christine Peterson, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony, the Rev. A. H. Carver, of this city officiating.

The bride was gowned in a beautiful dress trimmed with white organdie and she carried in her hand a shower of fern. The groom was attired in the conventional black cutaway. The ring ceremony was used. Hans J. Peterson was best man and Miss Hannah J. Nelson was maid of honor.

After the ceremony the bridal party regaled themselves from a table well laden with delicacies. Mr. and Mrs. McCloskey left on the midnight train for St. Paul and from thence they will go to Missouri, the home of the former. Both parties are well known in this city, the groom being the efficient engineer at the Sanitarium. The bride was also connected with the hospital corps up to a few days before the wedding and she is very well known there. A large number of friends of both young people extend congratulations.

AMUSEMENTS.

Everybody who enjoys hearty laughter should attend the Gardner

hall next week during which time Santanelli the master hypnotist plays his first engagement in this city. There is no kind of attraction that can produce the fun and laughter that hypnotism does for here is real comedy all taken from life. It is not rehearsed and all the actors are local people. Santanelli carries no subjects and all doubts of the skeptics are removed when Santanelli introduces his rapid and wonderful method of producing the hypnotic state.

Every where that he has played in the northwest the press and public have declared him to be the greatest hypnotist of the age. Winnipeg papers devoted columns in praise of his wonderful power and the Fargo press in their comments describe him as the greatest and most wonderful of all hypnotists. This will no doubt be the only opportunity of the theater going public of this city to see Santanelli as he returns east preparatory to a long European tour and if you would laugh long and hearty spend an evening with Santanelli. Ladies will be admitted free Monday evening if accompanied with a person holding a paid reserved seat ticket.

The exhibitions this afternoon and evening will be thrilling ones, calculated to stir the blood of even frontier men, and will consist of reproductions and daring deeds of the far west together with the novelties of a high order. Indians, Cossacks, Arabs, Cowboys, Japanese, Mexicans, Gauchos, Daring Lady Equestrians in heroic pastimes, on foot and in the saddle. Champion rifle and pistol shots, adepts with the bow and arrow, the spear and bolus, and as a special feature those strange people, the Bushmen from Australia. A word about them may not be amiss.

A King's Awful Revenge

Caused His Rival to
Be Slowly
Boiled
To Death
In Oil

One morning in the year 1506, when Joanna, the daughter of Ferdinand and Isabella, was queen of Leon and Castile, her husband, Philip, he whom the Spaniards surnamed The Beautiful Blooddog and who lives in history as the father of Charles V., examined his wife's sketchbook.

The particular sketchbook which Philip picked up in the queen's closet contained the figure of a man in a dozen or more poses.

The stranger was beautiful of face and noble of carriage, and his various portraits were drawn with such felicity and withal so skillfully that the king thought the heart as well as the artistic interest of his wife engaged.

Philip summoned his chief of spies, and the men and women of "Holy Hermandad" soon explained the mystery. The knight with the noble, manly face, the round, smiling lips, the owner of those dark, victorious eyes which the queen had painted, was Don Jayme d'Avila, a grandee who belonged to the flower of Andalusian knighthood.

King Philip knew enough. He sent for Luis de Lucero, a cartoonist celebrated for his talent as a sketch artist.

"Master," he said to him, "I want you to furnish me a number of portraits of some living person who will appear before you in different attitudes. The subject will be at your disposal for about two hours. How often can you draw a head in that time?"

"As often as your majesty commands."

"Be it so," said the king. "Repair to the Hall of Alcazils."

In the Hall of Alcazils the artist was furnished with paper and ink pots and conducted to the torture chamber.

At the farther end of the hall was a platform, where seven old men sat in stately robes and proud attitudes. All but one wore hoods over their heads that partly shaded their faces.

To the right of the tribunal were a smaller table and three chairs, one of which was offered to Don Luis. Two masked men seated themselves to his right and left. One was tall and imperious in manner, and in him the artist recognized the king.

When his eyes became accustomed to the darkness enveloping the room, Don Luis discovered that a certain spot under a lamp was covered by a black cloth slightly raised in the center, and this part of the cover moved to and fro as if animated by a good sized oblong object.

This object was the head which Don Luis had been hired to sketch. As the executioner removed the cloth the painter was relieved to see that the head was alive, that it was a head on sound shoulders, a hero's or at least a warrior's head, with fiery, wrathful eye, a bold front, lips that curled with contempt and full cheeks, flaming just then with righteous indignation.

"By the saints, he has been sentenced to the caldaria!" exclaimed Don Luis half to himself after reflecting on the head's position.

The caldaria is an iron pot of cylindrical form, big enough to admit the figure of a grown person, leaving only the head free. This pot, filled with oil, was hung over a fireplace, the fuel of which could be kindled to a great intensity or drawn out at a moment's notice.

Now the high lord judge opened his mouth and spoke in impressive tones. "Don Jayme d'Avila, confess before you spoke with Joanna, the daughter of Ferdinand of Aragon and Isabella of Castile for the first time and when you held speech with her for the last time."

The lips of the head opened, and the man in the boiler answered, "I never saw Joanna near enough to hold speech with her, and she never did me the honor to address me, nor have I dared to speak to her."

The king raised his hand toward the high lord judge, who stepped upon the bell fast in the floor. It droned out three strokes, whereupon the noise of shuffling feet and of working bellows was heard down below. This lasted several minutes. Then everything became quiet again.

The king kept his flaming eyes fastened on those of Don Jayme. Don Jayme's big orbs were emitting fire, and the veins of his forehead swelled as if they would burst. Another minute passed—60 seconds, each an eternity of suffering. The knight seemed to foresee his fate, and his face took on an expression of terror and discouragement.

"Draw, Don Luis. Draw this head! Thus I like to see it. The coloring is splendid. Draw, Don Luis! Death to you if you miss a wrinkle!"

The king stamped his foot, and the high lord judge, repeating the signal, struck the bell seven times, thereby causing the executioners to add as many logs to the fire.

Don Jayme's cheeks grew scarlet, his eyes became bloodshot and finally closed, the hair stood on end, and the face, so beautiful and noble half an hour before, twisted into a hellish caricature of its former self.

"Sketch him now! Here is your chance for winning a fortune!" cried the king, handing Don Luis parchment after parchment.

"We have given you ample time to reflect," spoke the high lord judge anew, addressing Don Jayme. "Are you now ready to confess? If you are, I will order the fire put out."

Then the unexpected happened. The head began to smile. Next it laughed, laughed shrilly and vociferously, laughed in piercing and ear-splitting accents.

The king raised his right hand, whereupon the high lord judge signaled the executioner to draw out the fire.

As the liquid in the cylinder cooled the scarlet hue slowly left Don Jayme's face, which became yellow and flabby; but, though its outlines, distorted by convulsive laughter, resumed their normal shape, the cheeks and forehead were torn by innumerable deep furrows, giving it the aspect of extreme old age.

"The liquid is quite cool," signaled the man below. And the high lord judge asked again: "Don Jayme, our patience is near its end. As a father I advise you to make a clean breast of it."

The head indicated that it had heard the words and had understood them. Its eyes opened wide and took on an eager look, as if they were to jump from their hollows. The face changed to oblong as the lower jaw dropped with a perceptible crunching of bones.

"Work, slave! Draw! I tell you! It's one of the most interesting studies of the lot. Jot it down, rascal, lest I give you a taste of the whip!" This from the king.

Now the death rattle in the specter's throat formed into words.

"Answer I will, at my convenience. Let it be in seven days. Yes, in seven days, King Philip, I will meet thee, stepping down to hell to have speech with thee! In seven days!"

Toward the end of this sentence Don Jayme's protruding eyes became glassy. The lids sank down and slowly closed up. His mouth got blue, and the head rocked until it fell hard upon the stone floor, where it lay lifeless, inflexible in death as before.

Three days and three nights Don Luis worked over his sketches. Then, word having been sent to the palace, an officer appeared to carry them away after previously depositing the sum agreed upon in new goldpieces.

At midnight he invited Joanna to step into an inner room belonging to her suit. The chamber had previously been furnished and arranged to resemble the hall of torture under the Escorial in every detail. Miniature racks and wheels, tongs and chains, galleys and ladders, scourges and scorpions stood in the corners or leaned against the walls, and in the center of the room rose a platform draped in black.

On this were placed Don Luis' sketches of the head of the man boiled in oil, the beautiful, the contemptuous, the angry, the suffering, the crying, the despairing, the dying Don Jayme, and lastly Don Jayme the prophet.

As Joanna caught sight of the portraits she fell to the floor a raving maniac.

Upon the night of the seventh day after Don Jayme's torture Philip was found dead in bed shortly after 12 o'clock. His brown hair had whitened, the bloom of youth and vigor had vanished from his countenance. And thus Don Jayme's prophecy had come true.

QUEEN SEES THE PORTRAITS.

Perils Of Alpine Climbing

Every year adds new names to the death roll of those adventurous persons who find excitement in climbing lofty mountain peaks. Yet notwithstanding the ardor of the devotees of this perilous pastime it is in no way abated, and their numbers increase.

On the whole, Alpine accidents are very real things. They mainly happen—first, when the climber falls off the mountains; second, when the mountain or some portion of it falls on the climber; third, when the climber loses his way or is weather bound.

The simple fall of course is mainly an incident of rock climbing. It is particularly frequent in the Dolomites, where many of the peaks that are ascended look rather more difficult to climb than prison walls.

The classical example of this sort of accident is the famous accident to Mr. Whymper's party on the Matterhorn. It is an old and well known story, but one may venture to repeat it in the briefest possible outline.

It happened on the way down at the point where the angle of inclination alters and the mountain suddenly becomes steeper, so that the leaders of the party were hidden from those above them. Michel Croz, the guide, was in front. Then followed Mr. Hadow, the Rev. Charles Hunsdon, Lord Francis Douglas, the old and younger Tangwaird and Mr. Whymper himself. The lame duck of the party was Mr. Hadow. He was tired out and could hardly move. Croz was obliged to keep into the proper footholds. He slipped, fell against Croz and knocked him, too, from his foothold. Croz fell 10 or 12 feet through the air, and then the shock came. Instantly Hudson and Lord Francis Douglas were dragged from their places, and the weight of the four falling men came upon the other three, who planted themselves firmly and clung to the rocks, the jerk coming on them as on one man. Even then nothing could have saved them if the rope had held. But the rope broke, and its parted strands separated the living and the dead. There were four dead bodies on the glacier 4,000 feet below and three terror stricken men clinging to the Matterhorn crags.

Similar falls have taken place on narrow aretes, knife edges of rock or ice resembling the sloping reefs of high rows of houses. Lord Francis Hope before his death on the Matterhorn fell off such an arete on the dangerous Ober-Tailhorn. Happily his guide, seeing him fall, did the only thing possible to save both their lives.

He leaped over the arete on the opposite side to that on which Lord Francis Douglas had fallen. The two men balanced each other as they lay slung across the ridge by the rope. They had not let go of their ice axes and were presently able to scramble up on to it again. Other guides have been known to do the same thing on the arete of Monte Rosa and on certain aretes in the Engadine. It is the only thing to be done under the circumstances, but it is not easy while sitting at home to realize how much presence of mind is needed to do it.

The last Alpine season was marked by several fatal accidents, so many, indeed, that the mortality of 1882 and 1883 was almost reached. The last noted victim was Dr. Schaeffer of Mainz, who fell into a crevasse on the Ortler Spitz, Tyrolean Alps, in August last. The doctor was a heavy man, and, being in front of his guide at the time and having only 33 feet of rope between them when they should have had at least 50 and falling 72 feet, pulled his guide, John Offer, into the crevasse, breaking both arms and legs of the latter, while injuring himself only slightly. For seven days the doctor tried to climb out of the crevasse and at one time got within 18 feet of the top, when he could proceed no farther and again went back to the bottom of the crevasse.

Ten long days and nights, he said in his will, which he coolly made on his bed of everlasting ice, had he waited for death. He was a man of large fortune, but in his frigid prison, with his companion slowly dying from the torture of awful pain from broken limbs and other injuries, he willed away his possessions, wrote long messages to his family and to his friends and made extended notes concerning the crevasse and the disaster.

Swift and Sure Death May Re- sult From A Slight Accident

Toward the end he placed their remaining food near the guide's mouth and his own, so that they might hold out as long as the cold would let them. His last letter contained an affectionate farewell to his wife and children and instructions regarding his funeral.

Near the bodies were found two unused boxes of matches and a separate memorandum from the will, stating that the accident occurred on April 23 at 7:30 a. m.

Only a few weeks before Herr Wiegand, a teacher of gymnastics in the University of Berlin, and his guide, Ernest Moser, were both killed by falling from a peak of the Ortler group not far from where Schaeffer and Offer met their fate. The peak is the Kognepitze, 12,665 feet, and the fall of Wiegand and his guide was about 1,000 feet from the top.

NEW BUREAU OF PLANT INDUSTRY

Chief B. T. Galloway to Be Aided by Experienced Specialists—Postoffice Department Flooded With Samples and Models of Shirt Waists—Minister Wu to Remain in America.

At the last session of congress the entire plant work of the department of agriculture was consolidated into one bureau, which will be known as the bureau of plant industry, with the following branches: Plant pathological and physiological investigations, botanical investigations, grass and forage plant investigations, experimental gardens and grounds, the Arlington farm, the section of seed and plant introduction and the congressional seed distribution.

The chief of the new bureau will be Mr. B. T. Galloway, who for 14 years was chief of the division of vegetable physiology and pathology, says the Washington Post. The heads of the various branches are Albert F. Woods, pathologist and physiologist; Frederick V. Coville, botanist; G. B. Brackett, pomologist; F. Lamson-Scribner, agrostologist. These gentlemen have all been connected with the department for a number of years.

The bureau of plant industry is probably the strongest organization of its kind in the world, as it has nearly 100 specialists, all engaged in plant industrial work. It is believed by the secretary that the new organization will greatly strengthen the work of the department and lead to a closer union of all allied branches.

Under the direction of Mr. B. T. Galloway, chief of the bureau of plant industry, the grounds of the department of agriculture are being rapidly put in a thorough condition. The latest improvement consists in the removal of an old orange hedge along Twelfth street and Fourteenth street, which opens the view and gives a much better opportunity for seeing the many beauties of the grounds.

It is Mr. Galloway's idea to label as rapidly as possible all plants and shrubs on the grounds with a view of encouraging those who wish to study the collection. By the removal of the hedge visitors will be enabled to better inspect the labels from the street and be afforded ready access to the grounds. Mr. Galloway says that the grounds are intended for study and that those desiring to examine the trees and shrubs may do so, and no objection will be raised, provided of course the trees and other plants are not damaged.

A King's Awful Revenge

One morning in the year 1506, when Joanna, the daughter of Ferdinand and Isabella, was queen of Leon and Castile, her husband, Philip, he whom the Spaniards surmamed The Beautiful Blooddog and who lives in history as the father of Charles V, examined his wife's sketchbook.

The particular sketchbook which Philip picked up in the queen's closet

"DRAW, DON LUIS! DRAW THIS HEAD,"
contained the figure of a man in a dozen or more poses.

The stranger was beautiful of face
and noble of carriage, and his various portraits were drawn with such felicity
and withal so skillfully that the king
thought the heart as well as the artistic
interest of his wife engaged.

Philip summoned his chief of spies,
and the men and women of "Holy Her-
mandad" soon explained the mystery.
The knight with the noble, manly face,
the round, smiling lips, the owner of those dark, victorious eyes which the queen had painted, was Don Jayme
d'Avila, a grandee who belonged to the flower of Andalusian knighthood.

King Philip knew enough. He sent for Luis de Lucero, a cartoonist celebrated for his talent as a sketch artist.
"Master," he said to him, "I want you to furnish me a number of portraits of some living person who will appear before you in different attitudes. The subject will be at your disposal for about two hours. How often
can you draw a head in that time?"

"As often as your majesty commands."

"Be it so," said the king. "Repair to

the Hall of Alcazils the artist
was furnished with paper and ink pots
and conducted to the torture chamber.

At the further end of the hall was a platform, where seven old men sat in stately robes and proud attitudes. All but one wore hoods over their heads
that partly shaded their faces.

To the right of the tribunal were a smaller table and three chairs, one of which was offered to Don Luis. Two masked men seated themselves to his right and left. One was tall and imperious in manner, and in him the artist recognized the king.

When his eyes became accustomed to
the darkness enveloping the room,
Don Luis discovered that a certain spot
under a lamp was covered by a black cloth slightly raised in the center, and
this part of the cover moved to and fro as if animated by a good sized oblong object.

This object was the head which Don Luis had been hired to sketch. As the executioner removed the cloth the painter was relieved to see that the head was alive, that it was a head on sound shoulders, a hero's or at least
a warrior's head, with fiery, wrathful
eye, a bold front, lips that curled with contempt and full cheeks, flaming just
then with righteous indignation.

"By the saints, he has been sentenced to the caldaria!" exclaimed Don Luis half to himself after reflecting on the head's position.

The caldaria is an iron pot of cylindric form, big enough to admit the figure of a grown person, leaving only
the head free. This pot, filled with oil,
was hung over a fireplace, the fuel of which could be kindled to a great intensity or drawn out at a moment's notice.

Now the high lord judge opened his mouth and spoke in impressive tones.
"Don Jayme d'Avila, confess before
these honorable judges when you spoke with Joanna, the daughter of Ferdinand of Aragon and Isabella of Castile
for the first time and when you held
speech with her for the last time."

The lips of the head opened, and the man in the boiler answered, "I never saw Joanna near enough to hold speech
with her, and she never did me the honor to address me, nor have I dared
to speak to her."

The king raised his hand toward the high lord judge, who stepped upon bell fast in the floor. It droned out three strokes, whereupon the noise of shuffling feet and of working bellows
was heard down below. This lasted

Caused His Rival to Be Slowly Boiled To Death In Oil

several minutes. Then everything became quiet again.

The king kept his flaming eyes fastened on those of Don Jayme. Don Jayme's big orbs were emitting fire,
and the veins of his forehead swelled
as if they would burst. Another minute passed—60 seconds, each an eternity of suffering. The knight seemed to foresee his fate, and his face
took on an expression of terror and discouragement.

"Draw, Don Luis. Draw this head!
Thus I like to see it. The coloring is splendid. Draw, Don Luis! Death to you if you miss a wrinkle!"

The king stamped his foot, and the high lord judge, repeating the signal,
struck the bell seven times, thereby
causing the executioners to add as many logs to the fire.

Don Jayme's cheeks grew scarlet, his
eyes became bloodshot and finally closed,
the hair stood on end, and the face,
so beautiful and noble half an hour
before, twisted into a hellish caricature
of its former self.

"Sketch him now! Here is your chance for winning a fortune!" cried
the king, handing Don Luis parchment
after parchment.

"We have given you ample time to reflect," spoke the high lord judge anew, addressing Don Jayme. "Are you now ready to confess? If you are,
I will order the fire put out."

Then the unexpected happened. The head began to smile. Next it laughed,
laughed shrilly and vociferously, laughed in piercing and ear splitting accents.
The king raised his right hand,
whereupon the high lord judge signaled the executioner to draw out the fire.

As the liquid in the cylinder cooled
the scarlet hue slowly left Don Jayme's
face, which became yellow and flabby;
but, though its outlines, distorted by convulsive laughter, resumed their normal shape, the cheeks and forehead
were torn by innumerable deep furrows, giving it the aspect of extreme
old age.

"The liquid is quite cool," signaled
the man below. And the high lord judge asked again: "Don Jayme, our patience is near its end. As a father I advise you to make a clean breast of it."

The head indicated that it had heard
the words and had understood them.
Its eyes opened wide and took on an eager look, as if they were to jump
from their hollows. The face changed to oblong as the lower jaw dropped
with a perceptible crunching of bones.

"Work, slave! Draw, I tell you! It's one of the most interesting studies of the lot. Jot it down, rascal, lest I give you a taste of the whip!" This from the king.

Now the death rattle in the specter's
throat formed into words.

"Answer I will, at my convenience.
Let it be in seven days. Yes, in seven days, King Philip, I will meet thee,
stepping down to hell to have speech
with thee! In seven days!"

Toward the end of this sentence Don Jayme's protruding eyes became glassy. The lids sank down and slowly closed up. His mouth got blue, and the head rocked until it fell hard upon
the stone floor, where it lay lifeless,
infexible in death as before.

Three days and three nights Don Luis worked over his sketches. Then,
word having been sent to the palace, an

QUEEN SEES THE PORTRAITS.

officer appeared to carry them away
after previously depositing the sum agreed upon in new goldpieces.

At midnight he invited Joanna to step into an inner room belonging to her suit. The chamber had previously been furnished and arranged to resemble the hall of torture under the Escurial in every detail. Miniature racks
and wheels, tongs and chains, gallows
and ladders, scourges and scorpions stood in the corners or leaned against
the walls, and in the center of the room
rose a platform draped in black.

On this were placed Don Luis' sketches of the head of the man boiled
in oil, the beautiful, the contemptuous,
the angry, the suffering, the crying,
the despairing, the dying Don Jayme, and
lastly Don Jayme the prophet.

As Joanna caught sight of the portraits she fell to the floor a raving
maniac.

Upon the night of the seventh day
after Don Jayme's torture Philip was found dead in bed shortly after 12
o'clock. His brown hair had whitened,
the bloom of youth and vigor had vanished from his countenance. And thus Don Jayme's prophecy had come true.

Perils Of Alpine Climbing

Every year adds new names to the death roll of those adventurous persons who find excitement in climbing lofty mountain peaks. Yet notwithstanding the ardor of the devotees of this perilous pastime it is in no way abated, and their numbers increase.

On the whole, Alpine accidents are very real things. They mainly happen
—first, when the climber falls off the mountains; second, when the mountain
or some portion of it falls on the climber; third, when the climber loses
his way or is weather bound.

The simple fall of course is mainly an incident of rock climbing. It is

OVER THE GLACIER.

particularly frequent in the Dolomites,
where many of the peaks that are ascended look rather more difficult to climb than prison walls.

The classical example of this sort of accident is the famous accident to Mr.
Whymper's party on the Matterhorn.
It is an old and well known story, but one may venture to repeat it in the briefest possible outline.

It happened on the way down at the point where the angle of inclination alters and the mountain suddenly becomes steeper, so that the leaders of the party were hidden from those above them. Michel Croz, the guide, was in front. Then followed Mr. Hadow, the Rev. Charles Hunson, Lord
Francis Douglas, the old and younger Tangwaiser and Mr. Whymper himself. The lame duck of the party was Mr. Hadow. He was tired out and could hardly move. Croz was obliged to keep into the proper footholds. He slipped, fell against Croz and knocked him, too, from his foothold. Croz fell 10 or 12 feet through the air, and then the shock came. Instantly Hudson and Lord Francis Douglas were dragged
from their places, and the weight of the four falling men came upon the other three, who planted themselves firmly
and clung to the rocks, the jerk coming on them as on one man. Even then nothing could have saved them if the rope had held. But the rope broke, and its parted strands separated the living and the dead. There were four dead bodies on the glacier 4,000 feet below
and three terror stricken men clinging
to the Matterhorn crags.

Similar falls have taken place on narrow aretes, knife edges of rock or ice
resembling the sloping reefs of high rows of houses. Lord Francis Hope
before his death on the Matterhorn fell off such an arete on the dangerous Ober-Tafelhorn. Happily his guide, seeing him fall, did the only thing possible
to save both their lives.

He leaped over the arete on the opposite side to that on which Lord Francis Douglas had fallen. The two men balanced each other as they lay slung across the ridge by the rope. They had not let go of their ice axes and were presently able to scramble up on to it again. Other guides have been known to do the same thing on the arete of Monte Rosa and on certain aretes in the Engadine. It is the only thing to be done under the circumstances, but it is not easy while sitting at home to realize how much presence of mind is needed to do it.

The last Alpine season was marked
by several fatal accidents, so many, indeed, that the mortality of 1882 and 1883 was almost reached. The last noted victim was Dr. Schaeffer of Mainz,
who fell into a crevasse on the Ortler Spitz, Tyrolean Alps. In August last,
the doctor was a heavy man, and, being in front of his guide at the time
and having only 30 feet of rope between them when they should have had at least 50 and falling 72 feet,
pulled his guide, John Offer, into the crevasse, breaking both arms and legs
of the latter, while injuring himself
only slightly. For seven days the doctor tried to climb out of the crevasse
and at one time got within 18 feet of the top, when he could proceed no farther and again went back to the bottom of the crevasse.

Ten long days and nights, he said in his will, which he coolly made on his bed of everlasting ice, had he waited for death. He was a man of large

Swift and Sure Death May Re- sult From A Slight Accident

fortune, but in his frigid prison, with his companion slowly dying from the torture of awful pain from broken
limbs and other injuries, he willed
away his possessions, wrote long messages to his family and to his friends
and made extended notes concerning
the crevasse and the disaster.

Toward the end he placed their remaining food near the guide's mouth
and his own, so that they might hold
out as long as the cold would let them.
His last letter contained an affectionate farewell to his wife and children
and instructions regarding his funeral.
Near the bodies were found two unused boxes of matches and a separate memorandum from the will, stating that the accident occurred on April 23
at 7:30 a. m.

Only a few weeks before Herr Weigand, a teacher of gymnastics in the University of Berlin, and his guide,
Ernest Moser, were both killed by falling from a peak of the Ortler group not far from where Schaeffer and Offer met their fate. The peak is the Kon-igsptz, 12,065 feet, and the fall of Wiegand and his guide was about 1,000
feet from the top.

these interests to Morgan & Co. was concluded in New York last Monday
by W. George Donnell, president of the Northern Pacific Steamship com-

NEW BUREAU OF PLANT INDUSTRY

Chief B. T. Galloway to Be Aided by Experienced Specialists—Postoffice
Department Flooded With Samples
and Models of Shirt Waists—Minister Wu to Remain in America.

At the last session of congress the entire plant work of the department of agriculture was consolidated into one bureau, which will be known as the bureau of plant industry, with the following branches: Plant pathological and physiological investigations, botanical investigations, grass and forage plant
investigations, experimental gardens
and grounds, the Arlington farm, the section of seed and plant introduction
and the congressional seed distribution.

The chief of the new bureau will be
Mr. B. T. Galloway, who for 14 years was chief of the division of vegetable physiology and pathology, says the Washington Post. The heads of the various branches are Albert F. Woods, pathologist and physiologist; Frederick
V. Coville, botanist; G. B. Brackett, pomologist; F. Lamson-Scribner, ag-rostologist. These gentlemen have all been connected with the department for a number of years.

The bureau of plant industry is probably the strongest organization of its kind in the world, as it has nearly 100
specialists, all engaged in plant industrial work. It is believed by the secretary that the new organization will greatly strengthen the work of the department and lead to a closer union of all allied branches.

Under the direction of Mr. B. T. Galloway, chief of the bureau of plant industry, the grounds of the department of agriculture are being rapidly put in a thorough condition. The latest improvement consists in the removal of an old osage orange hedge along Twelfth street and Fourteenth street,
which opens the view and gives a much better opportunity for seeing the
many beauties of the grounds.

It is Mr. Galloway's idea to label as rapidly as possible all plants and shrubs on the grounds with a view of encouraging those who wish to study
the collection. By the removal of the hedge visitors will be enabled to better
inspect the labels from the street and
be afforded ready access to the grounds. Mr. Galloway says that the grounds are intended for study and
that those desiring to examine the trees
and shrubs may do so, and no objection
will be raised, provided of course the trees and other plants are not damaged.
